It is a clear nod to the attractiveness of the financial centre of Paris. It is also a tribute to a remarkable campaign led by public authorities that François Villeroy de Galhau: New Year wishes to the Paris financial. A financial centre is a location that is home to a cluster of nationally or internationally significant.

London and Paris were the world’s only prominent financial centers throughout most of the 19th century. After 1870, Berlin and New York grew.